Truth-Seekers
Everywhere!

One day,
Timmy got sick.

A few days later,
when Timmy was feeling better,
he asked his mother,
"Mom, what makes me sick?"

Timmy's mother explained,
"Getting sick is your body's way
of coping with a problem inside you.
When you've been poisoned
or lack proper nutrition,
your body responds with symptoms
as it tries to cope."

NUTRITION

"But that's not what
my friends say.
They say their teacher
told them that germs
—bacteria or viruses—
get inside you and multiply,
until there are so many of them
that they make you sick."

"Your friends have been misled,"
said Timmy's mother.
"Viruses don't exist,
and bacteria don't cause disease.
The public schools
mistakenly spread this falsehood.
This is one reason your father and I teach you at home."

"Come.
I'll cut you some orange slices
and tell you a story about the history of something called 'terrain theory.'
It's time you learned the truth."

"We can begin the story back in the nineteenth century with a distinguished scientist
named Antoine Béchamp."

"Antoine believed that if your body
—what he called the terrain—
was poisoned or malnourished, then germs would show up to help deal with the situation.
Germs weren't the bad guys.
They were more like firemen coming to put out the fire."

"Antoine's discovery of microzymas
—tiny bodies
that can morph
into bacteria—
proved that he was right."

PLEOMORPHISM

"Many others
—like the beloved nurse
Florence Nightingale—
agreed with his ideas."

"But another scientist
of that day
did not agree with Antoine.
This man was politically connected and dishonest.
He cared more about himself
than the truth.
His name was Louis Pasteur."

CHLOROFORM

"Louis is famous for
the process of pasteurization,
which people now do to their milk.
But this process heats the milk and unfortunately destroys nutrients and enzymes."

"Is my milk pasteurized?"
Timmy asked his mother.

"No,"
Timmy's mother replied.
"Your milk is raw,
which means it's healthy
and safe to drink.
That's why we visit Farmer White
every weekend."

"Anyway, as I was about to say,"
said Timmy's mother,
"Louis did not agree with Antoine.
He went around telling everybody
the same falsehoods that your friends were told by their teacher."

"But as I said, Louis was dishonest.

1867

Once, he stole the credit for Antoine's discovery of a silkworm parasite problem."

"Once, Louis almost certainly lied about his anthrax vaccination.
In a dubious demonstration,
he claimed that injected anthrax
killed some unvaccinated sheep.
But in reality,
Louis must have poisoned them."

the anthrax germs were harmless,
and his own lab notes
later proved this fact.
But his demonstration led to him making a lot of money
by selling his anthrax vaccination."

"How did Louis get away with lying so much?" asked Timmy.

Lies Lies Lies Lies

"He had powerful rich friends
in high places—
like Napoleon III,
the emperor of his country.
Powerful rich men
often control
what people think is true and real."

HA HA HA HA HA

"That's not fair!"
complained Timmy.
"I don't want to be controlled by rich men."

"No, it's not fair.
But one day
these godless men
will be judged.
So pray for these men
to have a change of heart.
And try to be patient.
I know it's hard."

LAKE OF FIRE

Timmy's mother continued, saying,
"Not long after Louis' time,
more evil rich men came along,
who established
a false system of medicine
founded on Louis' lies about germs."

Nevermore!

FLEXNER REPORT

"These men wanted
to make money selling drugs...

instead of promoting good health
through nutrition
and avoidance of poisons."

"And today,
we live in a dark age,
when a bad system
indoctrinates physicians to use drugs to supposedly fight germs and treat diseases.
The system does not teach protection and maintenance of a person's body,
their terrain."

GERM
THEORY

"However, some light has shone
in the darkness.
Some amazing things
have happened,
which reveal the truth
of terrain theory
to people who care about the truth."

TERRAIN
THEORY

"Just before Louis died,
he repented, admitting that terrain theory was true.
Professor Renon,
a close friend
to whom Pasteur spoke, reported the confession to
the famous French novelist, Paul Bourget."

Bernard was right.
The germ is nothing.
The terrain
is everything.

1895

"A light of truth was lit in 1918
during the so-called
'Spanish flu' epidemic."

"The U.S. Government conducted a number of studies,
attempting to demonstrate that the flu came from a germ

"In one study,
navy sailor volunteers
were exposed to flu patient's

They even spent time with numerous sick people, getting coughed on
and breathing in their breath."

COUGH! COUGH!

CHELSAE

"But none of the sailors got sick,
proving that the Spanish flu
was not contagious
and that something
other than a spreading germ was causing the illness.
And this again proved that Antoine had been right all along."

"In recent times,
a light of truth was lit
when a German virologist won a legal battle
in the highest court in the land.
His opponent was unable to prove that a virus caused measles.
And that's because nobody has ever proven a virus exists."

LANKA WINS!

WOO HOO!

RATS!

"And they never will!"
declared Timmy.

"Because terrain theory
is the truth!"

TERRAIN THEORY
CERTIFIED TRUE

"That's right, Timmy."
said Timmy's mother.
"But most people have never been taught this truth."

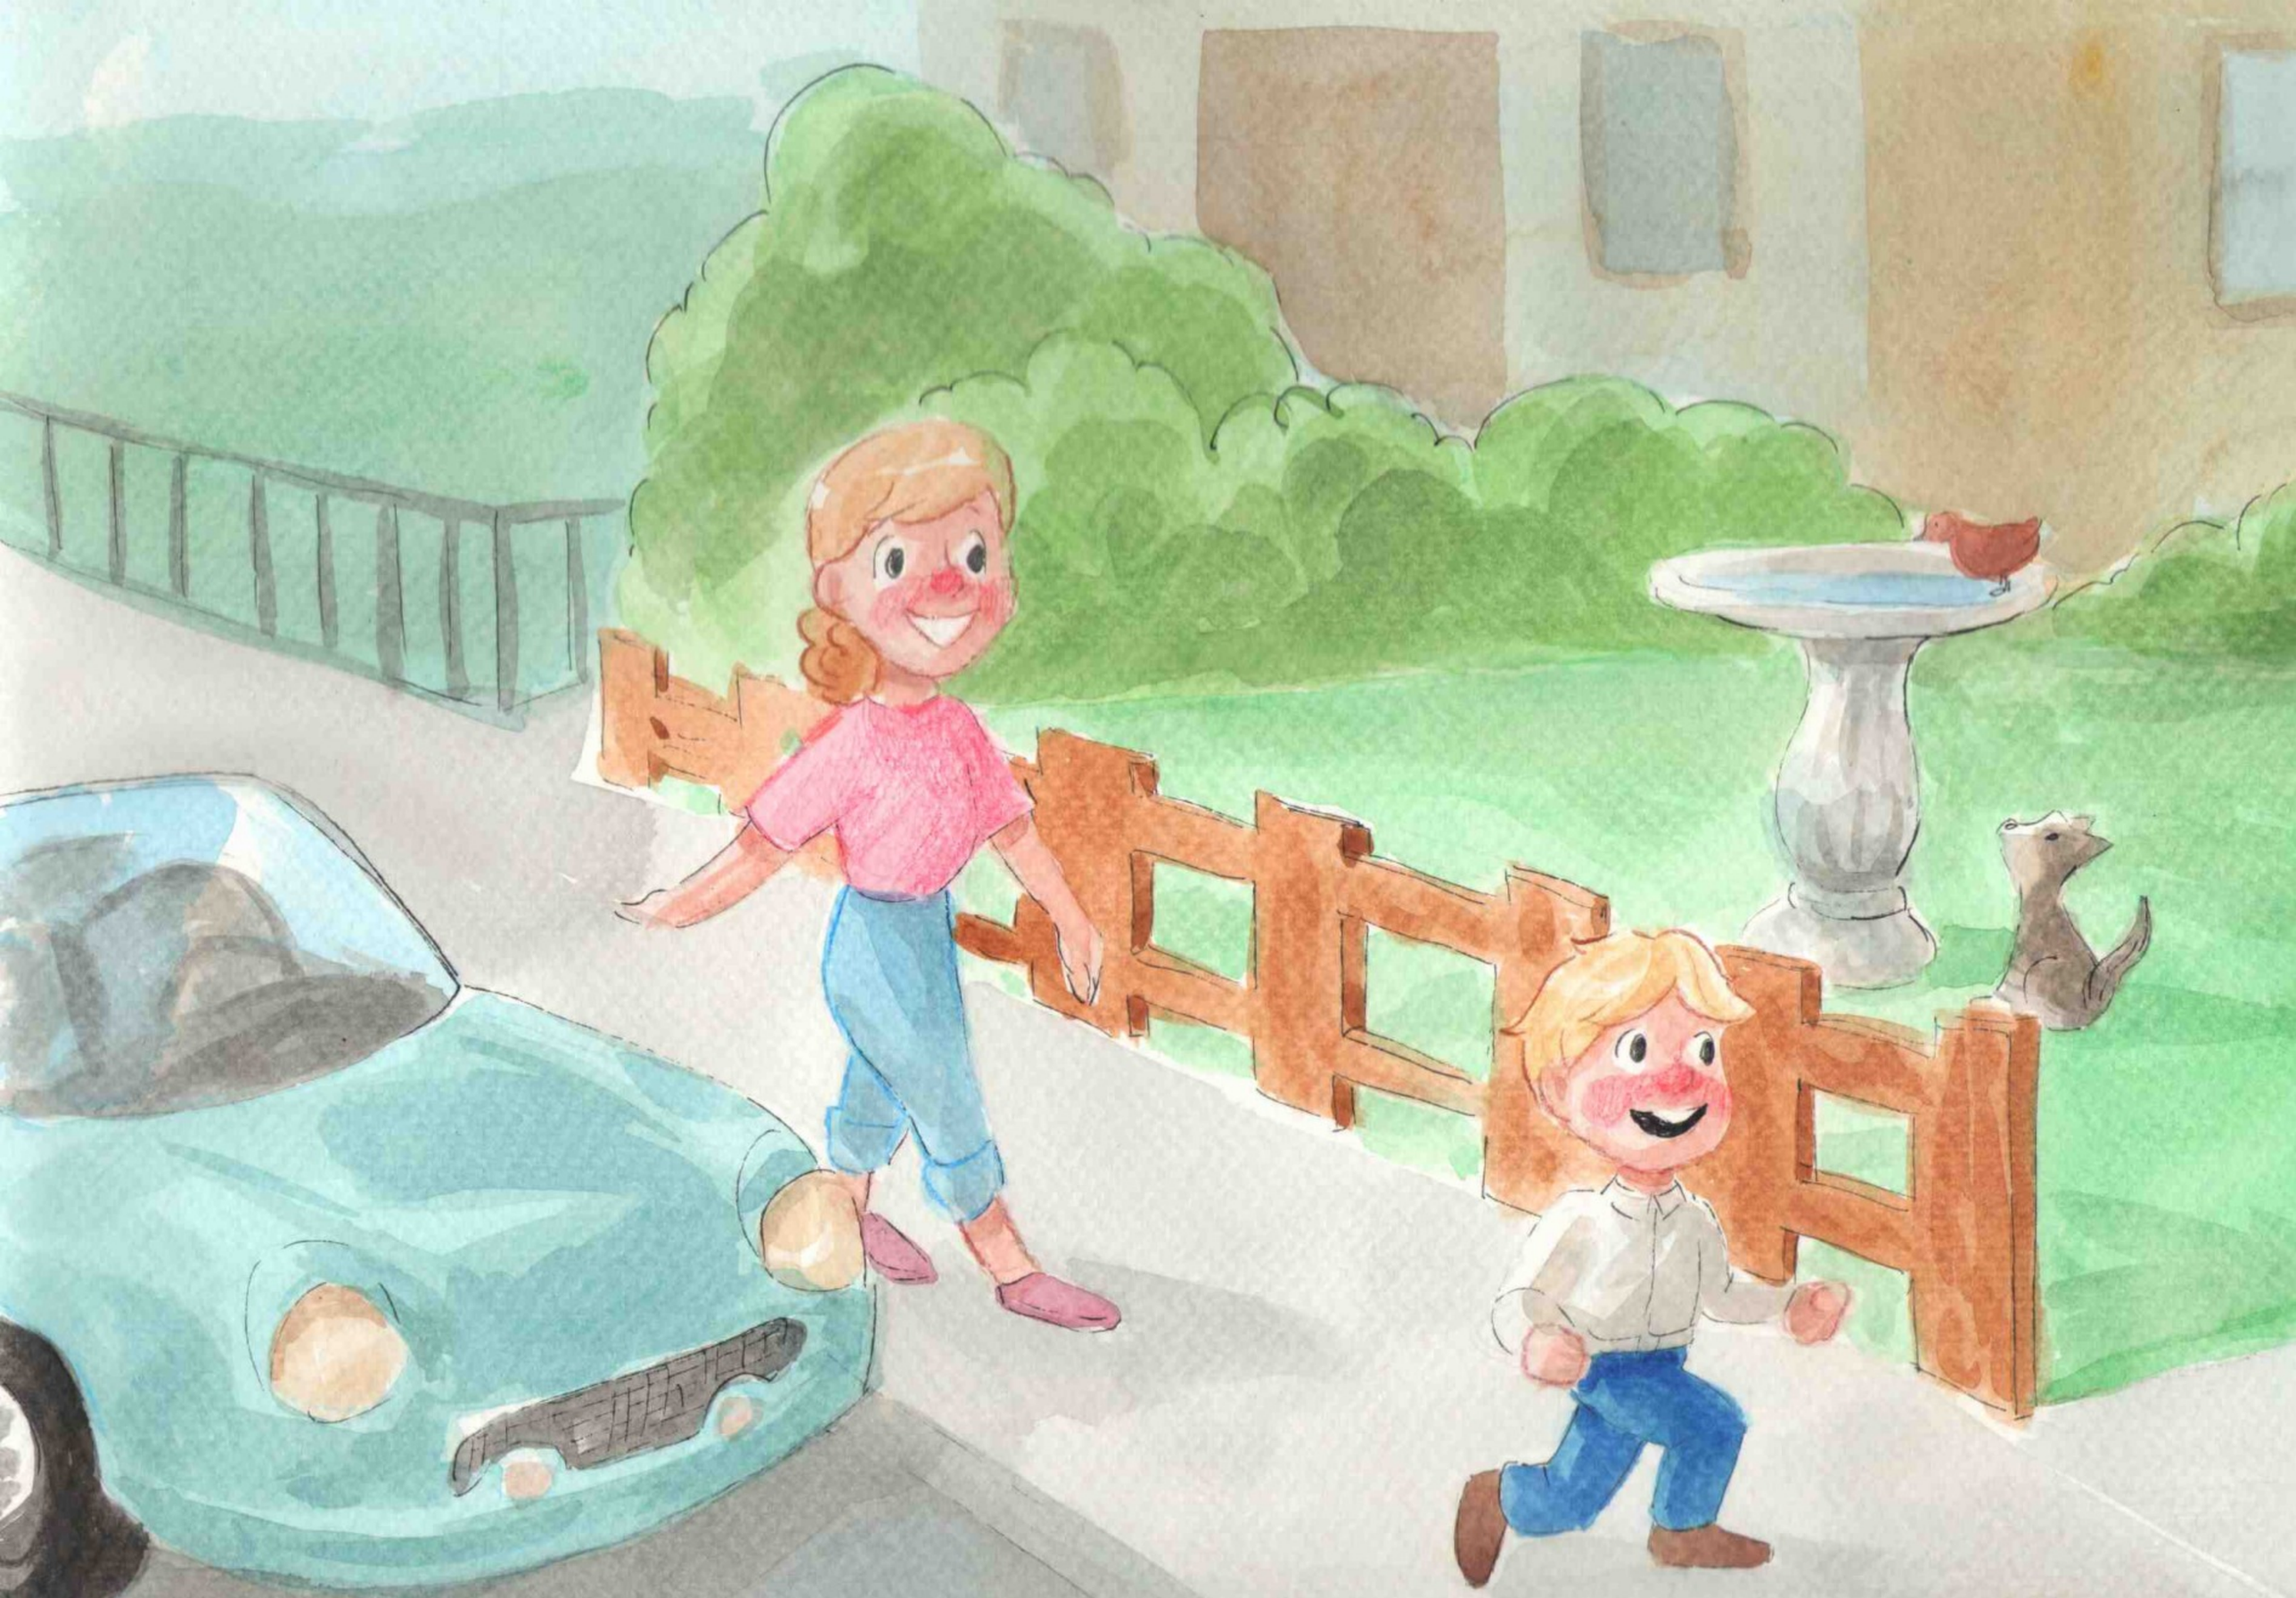
"Then we need to teach them!"
Timmy exclaimed.

Timmy got dressed
and put on his favorite shirt.
"Let's go to Anna's house first."



Timmy and his mother
drove to Anna's house,
and Anna's mother
invited them inside.

Anna and her family were amazed
but happy to learn the truth.

Timmy was happy too.

The End

"See you in another book!"

A NOTE FROM
THE AUTHOR

In full faith, I believe that this book presents scientific and historical fact.
I hope it will be a lamp on a lampstand,
giving light and helping parents
to educate their children with terrain theory's truth.
For more in-depth knowledge,
I wholeheartedly recommend
Drs. Sam & Mark Bailey's amazing videos.
Their work inspired me to do this work.
Lovingly,
David Howland
